We’re BLVR.
A new type of agency.
We’re not just a creative shop.
We are a belief company.

We consult with fearless leaders to build brands that shape culture.
WE’RE MAKING WAVES

We believe in the power of award-winning work. It’s the stuff that breaks through the noise. The ideas that rally internal teams. The executions that build community and create change for the greater good. Awards aren’t everything, but they’re pretty damn good, and we’ve been fortunate enough to be honored for multiple clients within the BLVR family.
We're launching, growing, and reinventing brands from the inside out to connect authentic purpose to people, profit, and impact.

OUR BRANDS ARE BUILT TO MAKE AN IMPACT
OUR METHOD:

BELIEF-LED TRANSFORMATION™
OUR APPROACH TO BUILD BRANDS FROM THE INSIDE OUT.

01 UNCOVER THE BELIEF AT THE HEART OF AN ORGANIZATION

02 TRANSLATE THAT INTO AN AUTHENTIC PURPOSE TO DRIVE THE BUSINESS FORWARD

03 DEFINE THE FUTURE YOU’LL CREATE

04 ACTIVATE THE BELIEF THROUGH EVERY BEHAVIOR

Vision
The world you’ll create.

Purpose
What you’re going to do about it.

Belief
What you believe about the world.

Behavior
How you live out your belief.
More likely to remember a company with a strong purpose.

Think it’s more important to consider purpose, even when making an impulse buy.

More likely to purchase from a purpose-driven brand.
Six months in the making, BLVR has just launched its first in-depth research report exploring the Power of Belief. In this 50-page analysis, we explore how shifting marker priorities are revolutionizing the way brands connect with consumers through belief-led transformation. The results are groundbreaking: Organizations experience 3x faster growth, inspire 261% more loyalty in customers, and enjoy 30% more innovation among employees—all while delivering long-term positive benefits to the world. Turn the page to read an expert’s introduction of the newest audience super segment: the Stand For More generation.
CULTURE IS SHIFTING.

WELCOME TO YOUR NEW CUSTOMER: THE “STAND FOR MORE” GENERATION.

People have never expected more from the brands they buy. The “Stand For More” generation increasingly experiences brands as extensions of their own identities and supports organizations that reflect their deep personal values and beliefs.

New Generations Mean Changing Priorities:
As Baby Boomers retire, Millennials and Gen Z are quickly becoming the largest global consumer group. Referred to as “the most ethical generation,” this generation expects organizations to stand for more than just profit. More socially conscious than previous generations, they’re more likely to be involved in climate action and politics, and, as they gain more market control, they are applying the same social and ethical standards to their shopping habits.

Heightened Anxiety and the Control of Personal Choice:
A looming recession and threats of global war. Pandemic aftershocks. Climate collapse. Today, many people experience unparalleled levels of fear, uncertainty, and doubt. Amid unrelenting worries from a world in free fall, the human tendency is to latch on to what can be controlled. For today’s consumer, control translates to using their spending power as a way to feel better about the world. They are more likely to experience intense negative emotions if they feel deceived by brands they once trusted.

Rising Expectations, Brands as the New Change Makers:
A 2018 survey showed that 53% of Americans believe brands are more effective at fixing social ills than governments. This shift cranks up expectations on brands. Consumers scrutinize organizational behaviors and regularly call out brand actions they disagree with.

Unparalleled Access to Multiple Information Streams:
More technologically sophisticated than any generation before, today’s Millennial and Gen Z consumers can easily uncover inconsistencies between brand messaging and real-world behavior. Armed with a plethora of information, consumers discover which brands live out their core beliefs fearlessly (even when it means taking criticism on the chin), and which provide only lip service to the convictions they claim to support. Consumers detect brand discrepancies and inauthenticity easily and spend their money accordingly.

Starting from the inside out, we meet with senior leaders and immerse ourselves in your organization to develop a belief-led brand framework to guide your business forward. The strategic framework aims to unlock your brand's belief, unite the leadership team, create brand alignment, define your differentiation, and identify your tribe.

BLVR's innovative design and copywriting team will develop a comprehensive visual and verbal identity system to reflect the brand's strategic objectives, distinguish it from the crowd, and bring the belief-led brand to life.

A belief-led strategy is only as good as it is behaved. We'll help you walk your talk by putting your brand belief into action. We craft the look and feel, stories, campaigns, experiences, and activations that rally people and create real, meaningful change.
BELIEF-LED TRANSFORMATION DOESN’T HAPPEN IN A BUBBLE. THE BEST THINKING COMES FROM CONVERSATION AND COLLABORATION. TO BUILD THE BRAND FROM THE INSIDE OUT, WE WORK IN LOCK-STEP WITH OUR CLIENTS TO SHAPE THE FOUNDATION. NO BIG REVEALS. NO WORKING IN A SILO. JUST A LOT OF SOLID TEAMWORK. THAT’S HOW WE GET TO THE GOLD.
SCOTT HANCOCK
PARTNER & CEO
As CEO of BLVR, Scott leads the strategic vision of the company, ensuring BLVR’s Brand Belief philosophy is at the heart of everything it does. Scott brings more than a decade of award-winning strategic ideation, design, brand, and business-building experience to impactful brands such as Andis, Vessel, Futures Fins, and DHI Telecom. Previously, Scott founded Risen Magazine, a pop-culture publication distributed nationwide at Walmart, Barnes & Noble, and Virgin Mega-stores, and co-founded The Glue Network, a global cause marketing platform that partnered with brands and non-profits like Cisco, Hurley, TOMS, and Keep-A-Breast, to name a few.
